

12/12/15: Judge Judy Makes Naples Her Primary Home

TV court show star “Judge Judy” Sheindlin and her husband recently listed their condo, their asking price $11 million. They first bought the condo in 2005 for $6.9 million. Though the couple is known by residents to own a home in Naples, their decision to purchase a mansion shows promise that they have decided to live there more permanently.

The mansion they bought sold for $8.6 million, a spacious 10,607 square feet with six bedrooms, nine bathrooms and two half baths. The extra space will likely house her family; she and her husband have a dozen grandchildren.

Their mansion features a family room with high ceilings, a paneled office or library room, an outdoor kitchen with a breakfast nook, and a lagoon-style swimming pool, a spa and three waterfalls.
